FROM OUR BOARD PRESIDENT

Forty years ago, domestic violence was largely hidden from view. It was considered a private issue, outside the domain of law enforcement, the courts and even loved ones. Family members often felt helpless because to help might only escalate the harm.

It was in this social context that Turning Point of Lehigh Valley was founded. In 1976, a small group of women began to meet, determined to actually do something about domestic violence rather than just talk about it. Out of these meetings, May Day Anonymous was born. Dedicated volunteers took turns answering calls from women trapped in domestic violence, passing the phone from one volunteer to the next.

In 1978, Turning Point of Lehigh Valley became a reality led by Bonnie MacDonald, our first executive director. A few years later, I had a chance meeting with a young woman fleeing an abusive relationship with just the clothes on her back. She was seeking help from Turning Point, grateful for a safe haven. Her story stuck with me through the years and eventually led me to become a volunteer at Turning Point. Today, I am honored to serve as president of the board.

In October, we celebrated our 40th anniversary and reconnected with many individuals who made Turning Point what it is today. We heard from survivors who shared their stories filled with hope and determination for a better life. We heard from loved ones and friends of victims, determined to make a difference.

This year has been a time of growth for Turning Point. In the community, we opened new counseling offices in Easton, Trexlertown and Slatington. Behind the scenes, we automated our fiscal, personnel and client management systems so we can remain good stewards of the funds entrusted to us. We invested in salaries and training for our frontline staff because we value their unfaltering commitment to our mission.

The Board of Directors also has made important strides to strengthen its role. This past year, we recruited several new board members with diverse skills and viewpoints. We continue to engage in lively discussions about the direction of the agency as we begin to develop our new strategic plan. I am grateful for the voices and support of each board member.

Since 1978, Turning Point of Lehigh Valley has worked with nearly 100,000 women, children and men ensnared in domestic violence. While we are proud of our accomplishments, we recognize that our work is not yet done. I invite each of you to join us as we work to prevent domestic violence in the Lehigh Valley through empowerment, education and engagement.

With gratitude,

Joan Marcus, President
